MAJOR DISCUSSES PLANT PROTECTION IN DISASTER PLAN

Maj. Samuel R. Bryson Addresses Exchange Club Members

IS GUARD COMMANDER

Connected With Hunter's; Was Awarded Distinguished Service Cross

Major Samuel R. Bryson, commander of the guard force for the three Hunter Manufacturing Corp. plants, was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Exchange Club at the Elks' Home last evening when he spoke on the subject, "Plant Protection in the Disaster Plan."

The speaker, who was awarded the distinguished service cross as an officer in World War I, pointed out that complete co-operation and coordination of all guard forces in defense plants in Lower Bucks County is necessary to meet whatever emergency or disaster might arise.

"The need for proper and adequate protection against disaster caused by fire, explosion, sabotage and enemy action is being met with a series of measures which outline the steps to be taken in the event of such disaster," Major Bryson stated.

"The plan comprises three divisions, depending on the seriousness of the disaster.

"The first is the handling of minor disasters from the plant control center and is used where the loss of life and property damage is confined to the plant itself and is not of very large proportions.

"The second is used where the disaster is larger, but is still confined principally to the plant itself.

"The third is employed where the disaster extends beyond the plant.

"For each of these situations different methods are employed, all, however, requiring careful co-ordination with the local and State police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and all auxiliary agencies, such as ambulance and hospital services and fire fighting services.

"The work of guarding the defense plants is carried on by Auxiliary Military Police, all of whom have been sworn in under the regular Army rules of war. While on duty these men have the same powers as the military police in the regular Army.
And in the event of a disaster all are subject to call and orders given by a regular Army officer designated for each area.

"Regular Army training officers conduct classes once a week for a period of twenty weeks for all guards in defense plants in this area. Besides regular Army routine the guards are taught the use of firearms, detective work and given regular drill practice.

"Guard units are organized along the same lines as those of the Army with regular commissioned and non-commissioned officers in charge."

The major's talk was thoroughly enjoyed by members of the club. Approximately 30 members were on hand for the meeting. Walter Pitonka was in charge of the program.

time was spent in perfecting a single

The flag was made in honor of the four sons of President and Mrs. Roosecountry. It measures 18½x15 inches, with blue lettering "In the U. S. Ser-stars appear, and the two-inch border is in red.

War Bonds and The Future

Washington, April 22.

IT IS not often these days that one finds an optimistic financier.
Mostly, our leading men of finance estimate the fantastic height of the national debt at the close of the war, look at the appalling taxation muddle in Congress, consider the staggering cost and size of the Government, shudder at the political link between the radical labor elements and the Administration—and regard the future with apprehension.

—O—
THERE is much to justify their feeling. Nevertheless, it is refreshing to hear from a man deep in the heart of Wall Street who thinks that our system of individual enterprise will be revitalized after the victory rather than destroyed, and that the disasters which so many foresee will not materialize. Such

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Save American Lives

The Army's medical units have the best medical and surgical equipment the medical profession can devise. The same thing is true of the Navy. But it costs money. An operating table for a Navy hospital, for instance, costs $400.

The Bond you buy today or tomorrow or next week, may help buy the operating table upon which many lives will be saved by Navy or Army surgeons. We can't let those boys down. Buy as many Bonds as you can. "They give their lives—You lend your money."

Axis by buying bonds now." so that all our boys can come home

Entire Formation of Gigantic German Planes Shot Down

Allied Headquarters in North Africa—An entire formation of 20 gigantic, lumbering six-engined German transport planes en route to Tunisia with reinforcements of gasoline and personnel was shot out of the skies by Allied airmen today.

With them to destruction went an escort of 10 German and Italian fighter planes. Eight other Axis aircraft were destroyed in separate action, bringing the day's total to 38.

This great new air victory was announced by General Dwight D. Eisenhower's Headquarters coincident with a smashing advance by the British First Army in the Bou Arada sector of northern Tunisia, in which Nazi forces were dislodged from several strategic positions.

The six-engined transports were beautiful targets for swift P-40s taken into action against them by British, Australian and South African fliers. With their great wing-spread and tremendous weight, they can do only 175 miles an hour and are "sitting ducks" for any fast Allied fighters that get within range.

Ground fighting meanwhile gradually crept forward towards strong enemy defense positions in the face of the most stubborn resistance yet encountered.

Enemy troops are fighting with desperate tenacity for every inch of ground—for every hill, mountain and valley—as the battle rages with undiminished fury.

Every indication tends towards confirmation of previous forecasts that the grand climax of this decisive battle will be "one of the bloodiest in the whole of the campaigning in North Africa."

For the moment, however, attention centered on the amazing aerial victory, achieved after a battle in the sky that lasted only five to ten minutes but is considered one of the outstanding victories in the campaign.

Loaded with gasoline, the transports burned fiercely for a long period after crashing to destruction. Enemy troops who were trapped in the big ships were seen to climb out and struggle desperately in the water in their attempts to escape.

U. S. Bombers Destroy 63 Enemy Planes

London—United States heavy bombers destroyed the record number of 63 enemy fighting planes in an unescorted raid on the Focke-Wulf aircraft plant near Bremen last Saturday, the European theatre of operations headquarters announced today.

This figure excludes a number of other enemy fighters probably destroyed.

test in the laboratory, using an electrically heated oven, especially designed for the purpose at the time of the explosion.

An investigation is being made to determine the exact cause of the accident.

Deputy Coroner J. Alfred Rigby gave the cause of death as compound fracture of the skull and third degree burns. The body was removed from the Wagner hospital to the funeral home of Robert C. Ruchel.

Castles was to have been married on May 8th in Christ Episcopal Church, Short Hills, N. J. He is survived by his parents, Walter and Edna

THE WAY OF THE CROSS

Even today, when the world is immersed in tragedy and when the destruction of human life has become the major preoccupation of governments and peoples, what happened on Golgotha a little more than nineteen centuries ago still possesses the power to grip the minds of men.

The theme of Good Friday is the Way of the Cross. It recalls the most dramatic and dynamic story in all history, a story that man cannot fathom but which, nevertheless, serves as the unending source of that spiritual nourishment that sustains baffled and defeated mortals as they struggle under the adversities of life.

Unhappily, there has not as yet been fulfilled the unconscious prophecy of His enemies, who, watching the seething throngs as they milled about Him, exclaimed, "Behold, the world is gone after Him." Nevertheless, it is an arresting fact that today, in a world steeped in materialism and war, the day of the Saviour's death is commemorated by men of every faith.

In churches throughout the world the stupendous tragedy of the cross will be recounted and revived and it will bring a measure of tenderness and gratitude and faith into the hearts of millions. In all human annals there is nothing to approach the story of the Saviour who, deserted by His friends, hated, tortured and crucified by His enemies, offered love and sacrifice and the promise of eternal life in return.

CITIZEN CREDITOR

One thought in connection with the current bond sale in the United States for meeting the government's war revenue requirements which is meeting quick and warm popular response brings up the fact that the American individual in ever-increasing numbers is shifting to a creditor position in life from a traditional debtor position.

Individual debt was formerly the customary thing. America in its youth started borrowing under the pressure of the need of money to develop a new country. Corporations when they came along a little more than a century ago followed suit. Long periods ensued when everybody almost was in debt and only the federal government was out of debt. Occasionally the government faced the embarrassment of a surplus, and on one occasion under the administration of Andrew Jackson the excess was distributed to the states.

The Civil War brought national debt, and for a few years thereafter the federal government, the corporations and the individual were all in debt. In a short time the government paid off. The corporation and the individual went deeper into debt.

During World War I, the corporation and the individual began leading the government huge sums. Individuals in vast numbers became lenders of money. Since World War I, both corporations and individuals have been lowering their obligations, a course which the government pursued for ten years, followed by a decade of heavy government deficits and borrowings.

Today the individual is more a lender than he has ever been, but no mortal being can predict the heights to which the federal debt will soar.

When the OPA reports a shortage of jelly beans, it means, of course, the edible type.

The Great Game of Politics

Another is a program of scientific taxation applied on an equitable basis, which would enable business, large and small, to retain sufficient earnings to pay a reasonable return on capital invested and to build up sufficient reserves for post-war reconstruction.

A FURTHER assumption of Mr. Schram's is that by the time the war is over practically every family in America will own Government securities and thus have a personal stake in the stability of the Government and the sanctity of the national debt. Such ownership, Mr. Schram contends, means a public sentiment that will prevent demagogues from misleading the people, protect the country against tinkering with the value of the dollar, compel rigid retrenchment in governmental expenses and put an end to bureaucratic incompetency. With these things Mr. Schram has no doubt at all that 130,000,000 "prosperous, risk-taking, ambitious, goods-desiring, world-developing Americans can service and amortize the post-war debt which they, themselves, have contracted to meet the cost of a war survival."

IN OTHER words, Mr. Schram is convinced that if sound governmental policies are substituted for unsound ones and the people are sufficiently stirred and informed to reject the demagogic schemes already developing that our vast post-war problems can be solved and the financial structure of the Government stand steady under the terrific strain to which it will be subjected. Of course, he is right, and this is exactly what anti-New Deal Democrats such as Senator Byrd, of Virginia, have been fighting for since, in the first Roosevelt term, the great spending philosophy was adopted and the bureaucratic build-up begun.

NONE of the things for which Senator Byrd has been fighting, and which Mr. Schram lays down as essential for post-war prosperity and security—to wit, a friendly attitude toward business, equitable and scientific taxation, and the elimination of governmental waste and incompetency—exists under the present Administration. This would seem to mean that both Senator Byrd and Mr. Schram believe that the future of the nation depends upon a change of administration. No other conclusion makes sense, though, naturally, Mr. Schram could not point this out in a speech supporting the Administration's offering of thirteen billions of war bonds.

IN SUPPORTING this drive, every sensible citizen, no matter how anti-fourth term he may be, will unite to the limit of his ability. First, because every man, woman and child among us is vitally concerned with winning the war as quickly as possible, and it cannot be won unless the money is provided without stint; second, because the great hope for a return to clear governmental thinking and sound principles lies in giving the great masses of the people a personal reason for insisting upon these things. No better way of doing this can be conceived than by multiplying the number who own Government securities. With the success of the last loan, there were 23,000,000 of these. When this one goes over, there should be 40,000,000. If that number of Government security holders does not turn Mr. Schram's assumptions into realities, then there is slight hope for us.

land in the area of the bridge, was blamed for the crash.

Eighteen of the injured were taken to St. Francis Hospital in Trenton, and others may have been taken to other institutions in the Bordentown area. A number of the less seriously hurt were treated at the scene.

The pile-up started, police reported, when a truck and a passenger car collided head-on. Within a few seconds, another truck and car crashed into them and, within a few minutes, six other vehicles smashed into the wreckage.

State police rushed to the scene and

SPORTSMEN'S BRIEFS

By JOE ELBERSON

Tried a little trout fishing on Bucks County's reportedly best trout stream, Cook's Creek, last week-end, with Ollie Hobbs and John Johnson. Our party didn't raise a trout. Ollie did land a big sucker. Saw one nice 18-inch rainbow landed while we were there.

Met a couple of Springtown anglers while we were on the stream. They told us that we should have been on the creek the day before when everybody caught trout. Sounded to me like the stories the captains at the shore used to tell their fishing parties.

Nick Rubino reported catching several small trout this week. Charlie Elliott came back from the mountains with a light creel. George Bintliff, president of the Edgely Rod and Gun Club, also had a light catch on his recent trip to the Poconos.

House Bill No. 848 in the present session of the Assembly at Harrisburg provides, if passed, that the Game Commission shall pay a reward or bounty of $4.00 for each Red Fox and for each Horned Owl killed in the Commonwealth. The Game Commission went on record as opposed to this bill because it makes such bounty payments mandatory on a statewide basis instead of permissive as at present.

The Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs recently went on record as favoring a bounty on Red Fox in Bucks County. No action has thus far been taken by the Commission.

Edgely Rod and Gun Club members, at their meeting this week, were certainly justified in calling attention to the damage being done to game by dogs running at large. At present, when rabbits are breeding, the dogs are probably taking a heavier toll than the automobile. Cats, and there are plenty around the fields and woods, are probably also responsible for considerable damage to small game. Perhaps if Game Protector George Freas at Horsham were notified the condition would be improved.

With the stocking Tuesday morning of 1000 adult catfish in the Canal between Bristol and Morrisville all local public fishing waters have received this species in the past month.

The catfish which were received Tuesday from the Fish Commission Hatchery in Holmesburg were not as large as those recently planted at Maple Beach and Silver Lake. Members of the Fish Committee of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association aided the Commission men in the stocking on Tuesday.

Leon Plavin, manager of the Auto Boys, called this morning and reported that his store has issued 153 fishing licenses to date. This is considerably ahead of the licenses sold in the same period of last year. Probably the Checker Stores and the Municipal Building sales are also running ahead of last year.

In answer to several queries on weights of record-breaking trout, here are the official world's fishing records for trout taken on rod and reel: Brook Trout—14½ pounds, taken in the Nipigon River, Ontario, Canada, in 1936. Brown Trout—39½ pounds, landed in Loch Awe, Scotland, in 1886. Rainbow Trout—26½ pounds, caught in the Skycomish River, Washington, in 1911.
